Comment Of The Day

TOO MUCH TOO SOON

TOMORROW, Singapore goes to the polls. What ever the verdict, and what ever the future resulting from that verdict, this much will remain. The political campaign that has accompanied the move towards freedom has been a most disgusting, irresponsible exhibition of public leadership. Men who aspire to lead the people in the name of the people have so far forgotten the responsibility of their office as to engage in verbal combat, using language and threats that would ill become the lowest scoundrel who inhabits the Singapore waterfront.

For rhetoric, they have not hesitated to scoop the gutters of Paris 1789 (heads will roll) and for vindictiveness they have chosen as their pattern the late Herr Dr Josef Goebbels (We will place you behind bars).

So what it amounts to is this: in this name of freedom, they will tolerate no brand of freedom that differs from their own. In the name of freedom, they will tolerate no ballot that refuses them office. In the name of freedom, they threaten their political opponents.

Can it be wondered then that responsible men of business have left before these ominous threats can be put into practice? Now the threats change to whines. They accuse the businessmen who have withdrawn their capital, of sabotage. They say it is a spiteful action meant to ruin the incoming government.

Looking round for a scapegoat, they pounce upon the Straits Times. They accuse that paper of hitting them and running away; to which the Editor, while admitting the paper is moving its stock, states his intention of staying in spite of their threat to imprison him.

THE threats of violence they have made have caused responsible men everywhere to wonder how the state of Singapore can survive under such irresponsible men. The question everyone asks is, have they been given too much power too soon?

Obviously, he who would govern must first learn to govern himself. These men cannot even govern their tongues. Ambitious they are without a doubt; men in a violent hurry. But the greater the speed, the more disastrous the crash — as the future may well show.

In Your Saturday Mail

TOMORROW the China Mail presents an intimate and exclusive interview with lovely Lucilla Yu Ming, Queen of the Sixth Asian Film Festival, held in Kuala Lumpur earlier this month.

Written by China Mail reporter, David Lan, the article tells how the petite Hongkong star went slowly through the heartaches and trials of local filmdom to capture suddenly the most coveted award in Asian films.

Included in the feature-packed extra-big weekend issue are:

- ★ Did It Happen?...another in the popular China Mail series of true and fiction stories that leaves the reader guessing the answer.
- ★ Do You Boss Your Way Through Life?...a quiz that scarchingly probes your way of living.

Included are all your favourite comics, cartoons, puzzles, three full pages of news pictures, a special article for clothes-conscious men, book and record reviews, pages for women, and the latest in sports coverage—local and international. Take home a CHINA MAIL tomorrow!

COMMUNIST-FRONT ORGANISATION NOW ILLEGAL BODY GOVT DEPORTS THREE MEN

Chinese Society Dissolved By Council Order

A Communist-front organisation believed to represent a number of New Territories farmers, has been dissolved by Government order and three of its top officials were deported this morning.

A Government spokesman said this morning that the men crossed the Lowu border at 9 a.m. They were office holders of an organisation known as the Society of Plantations (Tsun Tsik Kung Hui).

The order made by the Governor-in-Council dissolving the Society was published in this morning's Government Gazette.

The Orders

The men deported are chairman of the society, Fung Yung, the paid secretary, Cheung Tung, and the chairman of the Tsun Wan branch, Chan Sheng.

Orders of deportation were also made against two other office-bearers, Luk Cheong, vice-chairman, and Ip Fu-man, another vice-chairman.

A Government spokesman this morning said: "The order has been under the Societies ordinance which provides that the Governor-in-Council may in his discretion, order the dissolution of a registered society where he is satisfied that it is being used for purposes prejudicial to or incompatible with peace, welfare or good order."

The Society of Plantations now becomes an illegal society under the ordinance and members and office-bearers will be liable to fine and imprisonment if convicted of taking part in proceedings of the Society from now onwards.

Winding Up

The Government spokesman explained however that "Government has no wish to interfere with the proper winding up of the affairs of the Society and, on application, the Commissioner of Police will permit such proceedings as the Commissioner considers necessary for the winding up of the Society."

No further comment or information on the organisation was available from Government before the China Mail went to press this afternoon.

COMMUNISTS IN LABOUR PARTY

Berlin, May 28. British Labour Member of Parliament, John McGovern, told newsmen here today that 25 Labour MPs in parliament are warm sympathisers of the Communists.

McGovern added that if Communism were to take power as many as 70 of his party's 280 parliament members would "tear off their democratic masks and join the Communists."

Singapore Faces New Crisis On Eve Of Elections

Singapore, May 28. Singapore, on the eve of general elections, on May 30 already is faced with a potential constitutional crisis.

Dr Toh Chin-chye, Chairman of the powerful left-wing People's Action Party, has stated that his party will not take office unless some of its leaders, at present interned, are released.

These men, Dr Toh said, numbering "between seven and nine" were detained under the Preservation of Public Security Ordinance in 1950 after rioting in which 13 died.

Party Leaders

They included party leaders and one member of the Legislative Assembly, Lim Chin-siong.

Observers considered them to be the leaders of the far-left faction of the party. Most of them were trade union leaders whose unions in 1955 and 1956 took part in a series of strikes which came close to paralysing Singapore.

The legal position of the detainees' possible release is obscure.

Dr Toh said the British Governor, Sir William Goode, could order their release.

But other authorities said this question would be up to the Governor plus Ministers of the elected Government.

Determined

Up to the time a new government is elected, this "would remain the present moderate Singapore People's Alliance Government under the Chief Minister, Mr Lim Yew-hock."

Mr Lim has repeatedly stated his determination not to release the detainees.

Under the new constitution, which can be proclaimed by the Governor at any time after midnight local time on Saturday a council will be set up to advise on and be the ultimate deciding body on matters affecting Singapore's internal security.

Under the constitution, the council may decide what matters it considers to come within its scope.—Reuters.

Murdered Their Excess Children

Rotterdam, May 28. A "friendly" couple admitted publicly today that they killed five of their newly-born children over a seven-year-period because "the six we already had were enough."

G. C. Schaeffer, treasurer of his local kindergarten, told a district court he smothered four of the infants and that his wife drowned the fifth in a pail of water.

Mrs Schaeffer broke down in hysterics during court testimony while her husband quietly explained, "I always tried to kill the babies as painlessly as possible."

Schaeffer, 36, added: "We thought the six (children) we already had were enough."

Neighbours of the couple described the Schaeffers as "friendly and nice people." Schaeffer, a plumber, was known as a "children's friend," the neighbours said.

CONFESSION

The confession was made public in court by the couple. They were gaoled last November when they failed police about the killings.

The Schaeffers' six living children ranged from seven years old to 13. They were placed in a home when their parents were gaoled on murder charges. Neighbours said the children were reared "excellently and lovingly."—UPI.

NUCLEAR LINER MAY REPLACE QUEEN ELIZABETH

London, May 29. One of the two new liners to replace the aging Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, Britain's crack trans-Atlantic 80,000-ton liners, may be nuclear-powered.

This was announced today by Colonel Denis H. Bates, chairman of the Cunard Steamship Co., at the annual meeting in Liverpool.

Nuclear power would not be used for the Queen Mary's replacement because "atomic propulsion has not yet been sufficiently tested to think in terms of adopting it now," he said.

But it was being considered for the Queen Elizabeth's replacement.

The Queen Mary's successor, Colonel Bates revealed, will be roughly the same as the ship she replaces—an 80,000 tonner with a speed of 30 knots—about a knot and a half better than the Queen Mary.

Colonel Bates said it would be another 18 months before the plans for the first of the new liners would be complete. So building could not begin before the end of next year and the new liner would be four years building.

The cost would exceed £25 million in 1959, the Queen said.

Construction could not begin without Government aid. This was under study.

Meanwhile both the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth will continue their North Atlantic service for a number of years, contrary to rumours circulating in America that they will be shortly retired.—China Mail Special and AFP.

Burmese Rebel Chief Gives Up

Rangoon, May 28. The No. 1 rebel among the Karen tribesmen holding out in the area of the Irrawaddy delta has given himself up.

The rebel Muka Paw, alias Saw Tun Noy, a brigade commander, surrendered yesterday.

The Government predicted an early surrender of the Karen rank and file as a result of this development.

When the Union of Burma was founded in 1948 many of Burma's two million Karens demanded an autonomous Karen State and took up arms to free themselves from the Central Government.—Reuters.

Communism Not Growing In S.E.A. Says Robert Scott

London, May 28. Sir Robert Scott, Britain's Commissioner-General for Southeast Asia, said at Tilbury today that he did not think that Communism was growing in the area.

However, he added, "There are a large number of people who have been greatly impressed by the advance of Communist China. This is especially true of Singapore, where many of the people are Chinese."

Sir Robert and Lady Scott had just arrived home on the liner Himalaya on two months' leave.—AFP.

Scarface Skorzeny Refused UK Entry

London, May 28. Otto (Scarface) Skorzeny, former Nazi SS officer who freed Mussolini from captivity in 1943, was refused permission to enter Britain when he arrived at London Airport tonight from Madrid.

For the past ten years Skorzeny, an Austrian citizen, has been living in Spain as a businessman.

Immigration officers questioned him for more than an hour, and then he was taken to a transit lounge.

Skorzeny, on his way to Ireland where it is believed he plans to settle, had to wait four hours before the next Dublin plane was due to leave. He had no definite booking on this flight.

Transit passengers to Ireland normally clear customs and immigration before being taken to the domestic departure lounge to await their onward flights.

An airport official said: "We were told that immigration officers would not allow him to clear controls." Reservation clerks were asked to make a firm booking for Skorzeny. He was escorted from the transit lounge direct to the aircraft shortly before the other passengers went aboard.—Reuters.

Restaurateur Wants To Buy The Geneva Round Table

Geneva, May 29. M. Charles Bourgeon, French restaurateur who wants to buy the table used by the Big Four Foreign Ministers for their talks at the Palais Des Nations here, arrived in Geneva by air yesterday from Paris to try to negotiate the sale.

M. Bourgeon, a small dark man in his forties, said on his arrival that he intended to "buy, borrow or hire" the round table which is 18 feet in diameter.

The price he was prepared to pay was 50 million French Francs and if he was successful he intended to take the table on a world tour to exhibit it as a "symbol of peace."

WE'RE NOT SELLING

Officials at the United Nations European Headquarters here which owns the table said, "We aren't selling."

This table was built specially for the present conference and it took us 48 hours of hard labour.

The officials added: "When the conference is over, the table will take its rightful place at the Palais beside tables of other shapes."

Big Four Talks Continue Over Atlantic

Washington, May 29. The Big Four Foreign Ministers today left for Geneva in a plane which has eight beds, two mahogany desks, a library, two long divans, a short wave radio—and a special sitting room in the rear where they can hold secret talks on Berlin and Germany.

The Geneva Big Four talks were broken off when the Foreign Ministers left to attend the funeral of Mr John Foster Dulles.

The Big Four, Mr Christian Herter said before leaving, would confer.

The First

And talks would take place at 30,000 feet over the Atlantic. The aircraft is a U.S. Army DC-6B.

It was the first airborne diplomatic conference in history.

Mr Herter said in the waiting room before the flying conference room took off that he hoped sufficient progress could be achieved in Geneva to justify the calling of a four power summit conference.

In Secret

Mr Herter, the only one of the four foreign ministers to make a statement to the Press, said: "Soon after their arrival in Geneva tomorrow the four foreign ministers are due to resume their discussions on Berlin and Germany, but this time in secret, restricted sessions."

"I have never been over-optimistic with respect to the outcome of these conversations," Mr Herter said.

"On the other hand I still have hopes that we can find sufficient progress as a result of our discussions to justify accomplishment within the foreign ministers conference itself and (the opening up of) fruitful avenues to be pursued at a later summit conference."—AFP and Reuters.

Dulles Bequeaths A Quarter Million

New York, May 28. THE will of Mr John Foster Dulles, which was filed for probate in Manhattan Surrogate's Court today, included bequests totalling $238,000.

The rest of the former Secretary of State's estate was left in trust to his widow, Mrs Janet Avery Dulles.

The bequests included $100,000 to a son John Watson Foster Dulles, of Monterey,

Mexico, and $10,000 to a daughter, Mrs Lillias Dulles Henshaw, of New York.

Mr Dulles left $5,000 to the Reverend Avery Dulles his son who is a Jesuit priest.

Explaining this, Mr Dulles said: "I make no further provision on account of my lack of affection for, or confidence in him, but because social circumstances in his case make further provisions seem inappropriate and unnecessary."

Mr Dulles left $10,000 to each of his three sisters, including Mrs Eleanor Dulles, the State Department's expert on West Berlin.

To his brother, Mr Allen Dulles, Head of the Central Intelligence Agency, Mr Dulles left many books he might want from his personal library.

The rest of the bequests were to friends, relatives and institutions.

On the death of Mrs Dulles, half of the trust fund's principal will go to John Watson Foster Dulles. The other half will continue in trust for Mrs Henshaw to be used for the education of herself and her children.

On Mrs Henshaw's death, the principal will go to her children. The will was dated July 25, 1958.—Reuters.

Menzies Defends Immigration Policy

New York, May 28. Australia's immigration policy in recent years was strongly defended today by Mr R. G. Menzies, Australian Prime Minister, in a speech before the American-Australian Association.

The present influx compares with the great migration periods in the United States, he told a distinguished group of diplomatic, financial and industrial leaders at a luncheon in the exclusive River Club.

"Together with a rising birth rate this policy has produced a 2.5 per cent population increase per annum, somewhat higher than the Japanese rate of increase," he said.

GREAT GUARANTEE

"We have come to learn that an increase in population is a great guarantee of business prosperity. We have more people to develop a country as large as the United States, more people to work, and our progress in this has been one of the real factors in our growth and stability."—UPI.

Weekend Permit Advocated

Southport, May 28. People in Britain may have to apply for a permit for a weekend run to the coast if traffic congestion on the roads and the "vast number of visitors" to seaside resorts continues to increase.

This suggestion was put to the Town Planning Institute at their spring conference here by Mr J. Jefferson, West Sussex County Planning Officer.

He told them that although some sort of rationing or permit system for people to visit certain areas seemed unthinkable, something had to be done or the situation would get entirely out of control.

His warning followed reports of record Whit weekend traffic with what the Royal Automobile Club described as "chaotic" conditions at many seaside resorts. —China Mail Special.

INCITEMENT OF RACIAL HATRED LEGISLATION OPPOSED

London, May 28.

British newspapers generally opposed today a plan by African, West Indian, Asian and British organisations here for legislation to make it illegal to incite hatred against coloured people.

The plan was made yesterday by a seven-member delegation representing the organisation which asked the Home Office to take several steps for the protection of coloured residents of Notting Hill, London.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian asked: "Do we need specific legislation? One would have thought that it could be dealt with under existing law. At any rate the hatred incited was such as to be likely to boil over into some violent or provocative act."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph commented: "Special legislation, which assumes what it is trying to prevent, should be avoided—except in the very last resort."

The left-wing Daily Mirror also opposed the plan but added that the delegation was right to ask that Home Office powers to deal with race hatred should be fully and properly used.

"What the Home Office must now do is to ensure that this reasonable demand is met. And that there are enough police in Notting Hill to do the job." —China Mail Special.

Three people were injured when police fired on demonstrators at Cordoba City, Central Argentina, last night, in a clash between striking bank clerks and police.

Too Perfect Secretary Baffles Police

London, May 28. Police have stepped up a nation-wide hunt for Britain's most elusive confidence trickster—a blonde secretary.

Over the past two years, the woman has baffled Scotland Yard and police forces throughout Britain and netted an estimated £10,000. Aged about 30, sophisticated and efficient, the woman takes a job, gains the confidence of her employer—and then disappears with the cash. Her recent hauls included sums of £200 and £1,000. She has used nearly 20 aliases and by keeping on the move, remained one step ahead of the police. Police think the "perfect secretary" will now move to coastal resorts where seasonal work is available. —China Mail Special.

Belgrade, May 28. Communist and Western diplomats tonight reported widespread rumours that Mr Khrushchev, the Soviet Prime Minister, would visit Bulgaria after his present tour of Albania.

The Belgrade reports said the purpose of such a stop-over would probably be to explain any new policy line on Yugoslavia agreed by Mr Khrushchev with the Albanian Communist leadership.

Both Albania and Bulgaria have taken a leading role in the year-long Soviet bloc campaign against Yugoslavia.

It is widely believed here that one of Mr Khrushchev's aims in visiting Albania is to tone down the attacks on Tito, and to establish a "truce." —Reuters.

Russian Doctor's Discovery

Moscow, May 28.

A Soviet doctor has discovered a mechanism in the blood vessels which keeps the brain alive for three or four minutes after the body's circulation has stopped.

During those moments a "dead" animal can be restored to life by transfusion into the arteries, he claims, according to Tass.

Dr Georgy Medvedishvili, a senior scientist in the Georgian Institute of Physiology, says the brain arteries have a muscular "shutting-off mechanism" which begins contracting when the body's blood pressure has gone down to zero.

KEPT GOING

Then by expansion and contraction of arteries in the soft cortex or outer layer of the brain, blood is fed into the capillaries of the inner tissues, and the brain is kept going.

The mechanism also acts as a safeguard against a too-sudden rush of returning blood, which would be very dangerous.

Dr Vladimir Verzhbitskiy, one of Russia's top physiologists, describes the Georgian doctor's experiments vital functions in an organism in agony or in the state of clinical death. —China Mail Special.

What Not To Wear To School

Lenington Spa, May 28.
A headmaster with emphatic views on boys' clothes has told parents how NOT to send their sons to school — in a terse letter headed "Circular No. 4." He is Mr. F. Williamson, who has banned the 1500 pupils at the grammar school here from wearing fancy socks, cut-away collars, slip-on shoes, duffle coats and crew-neck sweaters.
Any senior boys threatened with addition to drain-pipe trousers were warned: "at least 18 inches at the turn-up."
Inevitably, hairstyles did not escape Mr. Williamson's uncompromising scrutiny.
He also urged irresponsible "sideboards" and curley advised all to play safe with a regulation "short-back-and-side."
By following the instructions, he told parents, they would prevent repeated disciplinary action and needless expense to the family. — China Mail Special.

Protests Over Trip By Space Monkeys

London, May 28.
The Anti-Vivisection Society today sent a letter to the American Ambassador here, Mr. John Hay Whitney, registering "a strong protest" at the dispatch into space of two monkeys in an American missile.

"Cowardly acts such as this can never be justified on grounds of expediency," the letter said.
The executive committee of the League against Cruel Sports also sent a protest to the American Embassy today.

It said: "Every human, animal-loving person of whatever faith, nation, or creed who reads of this diabolical act will deplore it, and feel sickened and nauseated by the so-called civilised mentality of persons who can submit sentient creatures to such a fiendish fate."

The league said the action "falls within the category of scientific devilry rather than scientific research."

It added "the next rocket you send should contain a human being who will at least be a free agent in the matter, and not a wretched animal who is sentenced to this vile torture whether he wants to be or not."

An official at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington said today it was not true that the two monkeys recovered after a space trip would be cut up.
He said the squirrel monkey would go back to its home in Pensacola for observation and live an otherwise normal life.
The rhesus monkey will return to Walter Reed Medical Centre to resume its work for science.

Both monkeys probably will be exhibited first, however.

Not Hurt
A U.S. Navy doctor reports today that the monkeys are in "perfect condition."

They had suffered "no injuries or other difficulties," the doctor reported from the U.S.S. Albatross, the ship carrying the space-travelling monkeys to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The two monkeys, contrary to some reports, were not the first animals sent up in a U.S. missile and recovered alive afterwards.

In 1953, the Air Force fired two monkeys 65 kilometers into the air above the New Mexico Desert, retrieving them later.
In addition, the Soviet Union has stated that its scientists have sent two dogs 445 kilometers up, after which they were parachuted back to earth. — All Agencies.

Wife Would Not Leave Home

Birmingham, May 28.
A window cleaner bound and gagged his wife in the bedroom and turned on the gas after she refused to leave their home to make way for another woman, it was alleged today.

George Bassett, 20, was remanded in custody until June 5 charged with administering coal-gas to his wife, Jeanette Mary, 21, with intent to injure, grieve or annoy.

Counsel said that while the husband was doing his national service in the forces he became friendly with another woman.

Last week he told his wife he wanted her to quit their home so that he could bring the other woman to live with him. She refused.

After leaving her tied up in the bedroom for some time he went back and when she told him she would go he released her, counsel said.

Bassett was alleged to have told the police he only intended to frighten his wife into leaving him or allowing him to leave her. — China Mail Special.

ARCHBISHOP SAYS BILL IS TOO TIMID

London, May 28.
The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr Geoffrey Fisher, today attacked legislation to check prostitution in Britain as being too "timid."

The bill now going through Parliament with its increased penalties for street soliciting would drive the trade out of sight but "the most sensible and effective thing to do would be to make the trade itself more difficult," the Anglican primate wrote in his diocesan journal.

It should do so "even if that means invading the privacy of the traders."

The new laws should also apply equally to the men who use prostitutes as to the women themselves, he added.

"The intention of the bill is to remedy what has become a public nuisance and to drive out of sight prostitutes soliciting for their trade. If that is all that public opinion will allow it is so far good."

"But such an attitude is surely timid." — China Mail Special.

Sub Confirmed

Ottawa, May 28.
The Defence Minister Mr. George Peckham, confirmed today that the Royal Canadian Navy destroyer Nootka was checking reports of a submarine sighting off the coast coast.

Mr. Peckham told the House of Commons that Atlantic Command Headquarters had ordered the destroyer "to investigate a report that appeared reliable that an unidentified sub had been sighted." — UPI.

BODY OF BABY FOUND IN EMBASSY

Asuncion, May 28.
The body of the baby granddaughter of the Bolivian Ambassador, Luis Arduz Daza, was found today in a cistern within the Embassy grounds.

The discovery of the body of two-month-old Maria Becar, who had been missing since last Sunday and was believed to have been kidnapped, ended a nationwide police search.

Ambassador Daza had expressed a strong belief that the kidnapping was an act of political revenge. Police questioned many of the 300 Bolivian political exiles living in the city but found no clues.

Police also worked on the theory that the case could be a family affair since the Ambassador's daughter, mother of the baby, has been separated for some time from her husband, Carlos Becar, who lives in Cochabamba, Bolivia. — UPI.

Kipling said it first — and it's still true today

"Oh, where are you going to, all you Big Steamers,
With England's own coal, up and down the salt seas?"
"We are going to fetch you your bread and your butter,
Your beef, pork and mutton, eggs, apples and cheese."

London.

MANY years have passed since Rudyard Kipling wrote those lines, but the sentiment they express is perhaps even truer now than ever before. Hourly, almost, the ships creep into our ports laden with foodstuffs for the larders of Britain. And more than 40 per cent of their cargoes have one thing in common—they have come from the lands of our Commonwealth and Empire.

At Tilbury lie freighters like the Glynafon, La Cordillera and Kumba bearing thousands of tons of palm kernels and ground nuts from West Africa which will be processed into margarine.

In London Docks the Durban Castle has brought tea, cloves, cardamom and coffee from British East Africa.

At Southampton, the 27,000-ton Capetown Castle unloaded the last of her 1,500-ton cargo of food from South Africa, including pears, grapes, oranges and beef from both the Union and Rhodesia.

Her skipper, Captain Jack Trayner of Westcliff-on-Sea, has been a sailor for 45 years, 41 of them spent on the South African run.

"Every trip," he said, "We bring from South Africa and Rhodesia up to 2,000 tons of food. It includes beef, eggs, bacon and pork, peaches, plums, grapefruit, lemons and oranges. In return, we take out there such things as cars, typewriters, textiles and whisky."

As much as 2,000 tons every six weeks—which adds up to more than 10,000 tons of food or just that one ship every year.

COMMON BOND

And it means, too, that Jack Trayner and his fellow captains are, in their fashion, the logical successors to the seamen and merchant adventurers of ages past who first opened the trade routes between Britain and the Empire—the Raleighs and Drake, the Cabots and Cooks. Linked by the common bond of the Commonwealth on the shelves and in the refrigerators of our homes, are the wheat-fields of Canada, the tea plantations of India, the orchards of New Zealand and the cattle stations of Australia.

The value of the food we imported last year from the Empire totalled nearly £700 million.

Foodstuffs—and the raw materials for foodstuffs, too.

In 1957 (the last year for which figures are available) Britain consumed 300,000 tons of margarine (compared with 370,000 tons of butter), and more than 80 per cent of the raw materials for this margarine came from what might be termed "our own" sources.

In the three years to 1957 Britain imported palm oil, ground nuts, copra, palm kernels, rice beans and cotton seed from Nigeria, Ceylon, New Guinea, Papua, Malaya and the British Pacific Islands to the average value of £60 million a year.

The principal use of these materials was for the manufacture of margarine, and these imports paid for more than two-thirds of our exports and re-exports to the countries which supplied them.

Some of the pioneers of the Empire realised, to some extent, the overwhelming significance of their discoveries. Rhodes, for example, with his "So little done, so much to do." Others, like Thomas Brydone, could have had little comprehension of the work he was starting.

Thomas Brydone? He will not be found in the history books. But this Scot from Peebleshire, who emigrated to New Zealand, was the man who arranged for the first shipment of butter and frozen lamb to be sent to Britain in 1882.

From that small beginning New Zealand has become one of our greatest suppliers of food. Last year our food imports from there were worth £120 million.

Big and small, each country plays its part...

Coffee from Kenya. Bananas from the West Indies and the Cameroons. Tea and spices from India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Rhodesia and Nyasaland. Cereals from Canada and South Africa...

Wine from Cyprus. Meat and tinned fruit from Australia.

Ground nuts from Nigeria. Sugar from Mauritius and Fiji. Cocoa from Ghana.

No other group of nations in the world has such a noble comprehensive and vital economic link.

BETTER LIVING

These imports do not constitute a one-sided traffic. Indeed, by exporting to us, these lands are able to import from us—with the logical betterment of their standard of living.

Britain's continued prosperity is bound up, inextricably, with the prosperity of the Commonwealth and Empire. The continuance of trade between us is not a privilege, but a necessity. Again, as Kipling put it: "For the bread that you eat and the biscuits you nibble, the sweets that you suck and the joints that you carve, they are brought to you daily by all us Big Steamers—And if anyone hinders our coming you'll starve!"

FACTS AND FIGURES...

★ THE VALUE of our imports from the Commonwealth for 1958 included: Meat (all forms) £112 m. Dairy products £75 m. Fish (all forms) £9 m. Cereals and cereal preparations £121 m. Fruit and vegetables £102 m. Sugar and sugar preparations £65 m. Coffee, cocoa, tea, spices £160 m. Feeding stuffs (animal), etc., £13 m.

★ From India came tea worth £74 million. Ceylon's shipments of tea amounted to £37,500,000 and Pakistan's to more than £1,750,000.

★ Only a small proportion of imported wine—about a fifth—came from the Commonwealth: more than a million gallons from South Africa, about 1,500,000 gallons from Australia and some from Cyprus. (London Express Service).

THE OTHER EXHIBITION... BY JAK

'And what's YOUR gimmick?'

CERTAINLY ONE OF THE MOST FANTASTIC HOUSES I HAVE EVER SEEN—

Come inside the Ritz in the country...

LUTON HOO, in Bedfordshire, is one of the most extraordinary houses in England.

Not for its treasures, which are wonderful, nor for its architecture, which is not, but because it is the supreme surviving example of Edwardian taste—rich, Frenchified, and smacking strongly of royalty.

That royal flavour is essential. Victoria's reign was so long that even its most unroyal features can be truly termed Victorian.

Edward's, on the other hand, was so short that the word Edwardian describes only things tinged in the same way with his personality.

Real Edwardianism started long before his succession, when as Prince of Wales, he first gathered round him those orchidaceous friends whom his mother detested, but whom we, in a bleaker age, find inexhaustibly fascinating.

Sir Julius Wernher was one of these. A mining engineer who had amassed a colossal fortune from South African diamonds, he found Luton Hoo a Victorian mansion in an 18th-century shell, and left it a palace remarkably like the Ritz, but far, far grander.

No coincidence

THE resemblance is not coincidental; the same contractors were responsible for both.

Like most of King Edward's financier friends—Sir Felix Cassel, the Rothschilds and the Beils—Wernher was cosmopolitan by background and education, and like theirs, his taste was more European than English.

The Victorian art collection belonged to the Victorian home.

The Edwardian collection, however, could only be distinguished from its foreign counterparts by an excess of Romneys and a portrait of the owner's wife by Sargent.

Otherwise the ingredients were much the same anywhere: Renaissance bronzes, jewellery and pearls; 17th-century Dutch pictures with a sprinkling of Rubens and Van Dyck; 18th-century French art in all its luxurious aspects; pretty girls by Reynolds, Gainsborough and Romney; enormous china

SIR HAROLD WERNHER —has added to his father's collection.

Despite death duties, despite super-tax, some of the most valuable art collections in Britain are still in private hands. This is No. 3 in a report on the Proud Possessors.

By DAVID CARRITT

vases and tiny jewelled bell-pushers.

Luton Hoo has all these in abundance. Where it differs from the mass of Edwardian collections is that Sir Julius had religious art, particularly medieval ivories. Luton Hoo is fantastically rich in these.

Ranging from a 10th-century altarpiece to late French Gothic Madonnas, his collection is unequalled by any in England outside the British Museum and the Victoria and Albert.

Pictures interested him less. Since he had little time for wandering round the galleries and auction-rooms, he would often conduct his purchases from the breakfast table—scarcely the best way of securing masterpieces.

Glittering

NEVERTHELESS, he required three which would take a place of honour in any museum.

The first is a painting of St Michael which he bought as the work of an unknown Flemish master for £700 in Berlin.

Eventually an expert who remembered seeing it before in a chapel near Valencia identified it as the work of a Spanish painter Bartolomeo Ve-lingolo.

A precious glittering vision of the Archangel, his sword raised to strike the demon on his feet, his damask cloak glittering behind him in the wind, it is certainly the finest 15th-century Spanish picture outside Spain.

Sir Julius's second great purchase was a large painting of Christ taking leave of his Mother by Durer's contemporary Albrecht Altdorfer.

This is an intensely moving picture, strongly expressive in its angular draughtsmanship and strange phosphorescent colour-harmonies.

Humorous

THERE is nothing by Altdorfer in the National Gallery or elsewhere in England.

Anyone who admires this great master must make the journey to Luton Hoo.

The third great picture is a small Madonna and Child by the 15th-century Flemish painter Hans Memling.

Human, even humorous, in its interpretation of the Infant Christ, this would soon become a favourite in any public gallery.

Sir Julius's other pictures run true to the Edwardian formula. Outstanding in each category are a sombre Titian portrait, a Rubens sketch of a hunt, two works by Meiss and de Hoogh, and Reynolds's dashing portrait of Lady Price.

Why nothing French?

Sir Julius did buy one exquisite French picture, Watteau's The Violon da Gamba. He bequeathed it to the National Gallery, where it remains the only Watteau in the entire collection.

Since his death in 1912, the collection has increased without altering its character. His widow, who became Lady Ludlow, formed the finest existing collection of 18th-century English porcelain, much of which is now on view at Luton Hoo.

His son, Sir Harold, has added 18th-century furniture and a few Old Masters, while his daughter-in-law, Lady Zia, daughter of the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, has added case upon case of jewelled objects by Queen Alexandra's favourite craftsman, Carl Peter Fabergé.

Nothing could be more Edwardian than these fantastic trinkets. Fabergé, who was court jeweller to the last of the Czaars, supplied the entire fashionable world with luxurious trifles.

He even managed to make such a democratic fact as influenza acceptable by encrusting thermometers with diamonds.

After the Royal family's, Lady Zia's collection is the finest in England.

Like the vanished world which it evokes, the Wernher Collection may strike the puritan visitor as intolerably sumptuous.

But to anyone who finds My Fair Lady more appealing than the suffragettes, I recommend a visit. It is more instructive, more amusing, and more incredible than the memoirs of any Edwardian courtier. (London Express Service).

JACOBY on BRIDGE

SOUTH had a lot of ways to make his three no-trump contract and it was fortunate that the line of play he adopted gave East a chance to make a most unusual defensive play and beat him.

South won the first trick with his king of hearts and played the ace and queen of clubs. East held off so South continued with the jack and knocked out East's king.

Meanwhile, West had let two spades and a heart go. East did a little thinking. How could he beat the hand? Obviously South held the spade ace. Maybe it was a singleton ace. In that case East saw a way to sink South.

NUPTIAL BILLS GUIDE HELPS DECIDE 'HIS' AND 'HER' EXPENSES

A n arbitrator has turned up to draw the lines of responsibility for a wedding. Barbara Wilson, noted bridal consultant, aided by the women's feature staff of the New York Herald Tribune, has prepared a "complete book of engagement and wedding etiquette."

In it, the division of responsibilities is clearly outlined, as follows:

The Bride's Side

—Provide the bridegroom's ring, if it is a double-ring ceremony.

—Provide the bride's linen, lingerie, clothes and luggage.

—Order, address, stamp and mail wedding invitations and announcements and provide a stationery trousseau.

—Plan the entire wedding ceremony from the fee for the organist to pew ribbons.

—Provide all transportation for the entire wedding party on the day of the ceremony.

—Plan and finance the reception down to parking facilities and a canopy over the door.

—Select and finance bridal attendants' outfits.

—Arrange for photographers, newspaper publicity, wedding books and accommodation for out-of-town guests of the bride.

—Register the bride's name and patterns with china, silver and crystal stores and buy gifts for bridegroom and attendants.

The Bridegroom's

—Provide the bride's engagement and wedding rings.

—Provide bridegroom's clothes and luggage and clothes worn by his attendants at ceremony.

—Buy bridal bouquet, going away corsage and corsages for the two mothers, which have been selected by the bride, and boutonnières for the best man, ushers and both fathers.

—Arrange for accessories, such as ties, gloves and spats, for best man, ushers and both fathers.

—Provide gifts for bride, best man and ushers.

—Pay for the marriage licence, the minister and accommodation for a bridegroom's out-of-town guests.

—Give a bachelor dinner and a rehearsal dinner.

—Make all honeymoon arrangements and foot the bill for the wedding trip.—UPI.

Tommy Guns Case Appeal

FULL COURT RESERVES DECISION ON SENTENCE

The Full Court this morning reserved its decision on an appeal by a shop owner against his conviction for having under his control eight Tommy guns and 16 automatic pistols.

The appellant, Lau Yiu-nam, 45 had been found guilty by Victoria District Judge B. J. Jennings on March 13 and given three years' hard labour.

Construction Of Chai Wan Access Road

As part of the long-term development of the Chai Wan area, an access road, about three-quarters of a mile in length, is to be constructed from Island Road to the Chai Wan reclamation.

The road will be surfaced with asphalt and laid out as a 52-foot wide single carriageway. Provision has been made for converting the road into a 100-foot dual carriageway in the future.

Tenders for the construction of the access road are called for in today's Government Gazette. Work is expected to start towards the end of July and take about 15 months to complete.

Lowu Camp Access Road

The existing access road from Lowu Camp to Liu Pok Village, in the New Territories, is to be improved and surfaced in macadam.

Work on the road, which is ten feet in width and about a mile long, will begin in a month's time and take two months to complete. Tenders for the work are called for in today's Government Gazette.

Two Killed In Landing Mishap

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Royal Titles

Sir:—In view of the editorial comment — in rather poor taste — made by you about my Dutch fellow-citizen's letter, I feel impelled to support him in your correspondence column.

In the present state of society at which some nations have arrived, it is no doubt arguable that Royal Families need no longer exist. Until, however, the abolition of such Royal Families takes place, it is surely wise, courteous, and in good taste that the members of such families should be treated with respect. The Press should lead in the jealous guardianship of that respect.

The use of Christian names instead of a title does not, so it seems to me, fit in with such guardianship.

General Hull Leaves

General Sir Richard A. Hull, Commander-in-Chief, Far East Land Forces, and his daughter Miss Mary Hull, returned to Singapore this morning by RAF Hastings aircraft.

Gen. Hull came to the Colony for a five-day visit of military establishments.

At the airport to see Gen. Hull off, was Commander British Forces, Lt.-Gen. Sir Edric Bastyan, and Lady Bastyan.

Also on the plane was the Command Secretary, Far East Land Forces, Mr. R. W. Barrow, and his wife, who were in the Colony for a short visit.

WOMAN COLUMNIST PASSES THROUGH

A well-known woman columnist, Anne Scott-James, of the Daily Express, passed through this morning in the course of a round-the-world tour collecting material for a new column specially for women. Formerly she was with the Sunday Express for four years. And prior to that, she was editor of Harper's Bazaar. Commenting on her new column, Miss Scott-James said "It will be everything concerning women."

She came in by Air-India from India on her way to Tokyo.

[Anne Scott-James is of course, familiar to many China Mail women readers, as the author of articles on fashions, published regularly in our women's page.]

MORE BRASSIERES THAN FLAGS

Latest U.S. Complaint Mystifies Colony

Inquiries made by a China Mail reporter this morning failed to show why American textile producers should be complaining about a possible "flood of cheap copies" of the new United States 50-star flag.

The flag, has not yet been designed, but will become official in July, 1960.

But according to cables this morning American manufacturers are already perturbed about competition from Hong Kong and Japan, whose prices are said to be 25 per cent cheaper.

Not Comparable

A spokesman for the Department of Commerce and Industry said that there were no statistics of Hong Kong-made American flags exported to USA but that certainly the quantity was not comparable to those of garments and brassieres.

"There is only one firm registered with us for manufacture of flags," he said.

"The situation is different from that of garments and brassieres which constitute almost 50 per cent of Hong Kong exports to USA," he continued.

"Since the item in question is so small and so is the value there is no reason, as far as I can see, for America to take any restrictive steps."

Ten Flag-Makers

A brief survey revealed that there are about ten flag-makers in Hong Kong. About seven are producing flags of all kinds for ships in harbour only, while the rest cater to the local market. Each make about ten to thirty American flags a year.

One maker said that the Japanese product is even cheaper than the local product and may be made in larger quantities.

'I Had Two Whiskies' Parking Driver Twice Bumped Cars, Court Told

Mr. I. T. Morris at Central Magistracy this morning reserved judgment until next Tuesday in a traffic case against an Indian merchant to consider whether or not he should send him to gaol.

Arjan Bhojwani, 35, of 13 Bonham Road, 3rd floor, had earlier pleaded guilty to driving a car while under the influence of drink.

A charge of careless driving was withdrawn when Detective Sub-Inspector J. E. Collins, prosecuting, accepted his plea of not guilty.

Verandah View

DSI Collins told the Court that he was in the verandah of his quarters in Calne Road shortly before midnight yesterday when he saw Bhojwani driving his car into Hospital Road from Calne Road.

While trying to park in Hospital Road, the car hit a parked car causing minor damage.

Bhojwani then attempted to park his car in another position, but it collided with another car. DSI Collins said Bhojwani was then seen coming out of his car and staggering along the road. He left his quarters and went up to the man. "His breath smelt strongly of drink and his speech was incoherent," he said.

Two Convictions

At that time he also noticed that Bhojwani could not stand. At the Queen Mary Hospital, he refused to be medically examined.

He had two previous convictions for speeding and driving without due care and attention. In mitigation, Bhojwani said he had been at a dinner party at a restaurant in North Point earlier.

"I had two whiskies. I thought I was quite capable of driving my car," he said.

His Promise

He also asked the court for leniency and promised not to commit such an offence again. Reserving his judgment, Mr. Morris said in view of the seriousness of the case he had to consider whether he should send the defendant to gaol or not.

Bhojwani is on bail of $1,000.

Executive Council Appointments

RABIES is still prevalent in the New Territories, in the Castle Peak Road region. A small child was bitten by a dog in Ting Kau village last Friday and died.

This was revealed by Mr. Wayne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when Mrs. X. S. Volgin of 31 Ashley Road was summoned at the Kowloon Magistracy for bringing a dog into Kowloon from the New Territories without a permit. The lady was cautioned.

A. Hertzberg, keen Shanghai punter, drove off from the ninth on the Race Course recently, killed a crow and equalled a 20 years old local record.

John Crow, flapping his way lazily across the fairway, never knew what hit him, and turning a couple of somersaults on the way down he accompanied the ball to earth.

Close inspection proved him to be beyond all earthly aid. This is not the first time the feat of killing a crow has been accomplished.

Twenty years ago, A. J. Daniels of the local A.P.C. office, also put an abrupt end to the adventures of a crow.

If the present expectations of the Shanghai Municipal Council are fulfilled, the International Settlement will soon see a public rickshaw which will, as it were, take your breath away, says the North China Daily News.

Instead of the dirty, dilapidated, uncomfortable contraption which, alas, is all too common in the streets of Shanghai today, it is proposed to introduce a swanky, spry, eminently sanitary vehicle which could not help getting both the applause and the patronage of the community at large.
